BAKE SHOPS IN PARIS CLOSED; ON STRIKE

PARIS, December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—The majority of the baker shops in Paris and the suburbs closed at noon today in compliance with the decision of the master bakers to cease the production of bread as a protest against the official refusal to increase the price two sous per kilo to one franc fifteen centimes. The government immediately ordered a judicial inquiry with a view of prosecution of the association. One reason for the master bakers' strike is their desire to force the government to do away with the law enacted during the French revolution in 1791, under which the government has the right to fix the price of bread irrespective of the price of wheat flour.

More than five million persons are affected by the closing of some 3,500 shops in Paris and the departments of the Seine and the Seine-et-Oise.

The scramble for bread began early this morning. Throughout the fashionable and other quarters men and women could be seen on their way home from the shops with supplies of bread tucked under their arms. The majority of the baker shops were stripped by eleven o'clock.

Then the public began a run on the fancy bread, cakes and pastries. When these were gone the bakers closed and went home. A few of them took the precaution to lock their iron shutters as a precaution against possible window smashing.

Up to early afternoon there had been no disorders.

How Many Of These Questions Are You Able To Answer?

NEW HAVEN, CONN., December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—Some of the forty questions to which Yale students have to answer yes or no to determine their mental alertness, were revealed today by students. An answer must be given within fifteen seconds after a question is asked. If a student says: "I don't know," to all questions he would not rank as a failure, but a guess, to a question showing no mental effort to answer it would mean a minus mark on that answer.

Biological students quote, among others these questions:

"Is water necessary as a solvent for nutrition?"

"Is it possible to have a balanced aquarium without light?"

In psychology the students were asked for instance:

"Is psychology the science of prediction and control of behavior?"

The civil engineers were asked to pronounce "true" or "false" statements like these:

"People who live along a highway should be taxed for its upkeep."

"Bribe is the best payment in the long run."

A question in physics was:

"If the distance between the earth and the moon were to be decreased by one-half would the attraction between the two be one-fourth as great?"

Discrimination In Favor Of Rich Tax Payer And Profiteer Charged By Governor Blaine

WASHINGTON, December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—Discrimination in favor of the rich tax payer and profiteer was imputed to Secretary Mellon of the treasury department by Governor John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, in an address here today at a national conference of progressive states.

In advocating removal of the secrecy ban upon income tax returns, Governor Blaine attacked Secretary Mellon for his recent statements in correspondence with Representative Freer, Republican, Wisconsin, that the government could not reach corporations' indiscreetly surplus which are the basis for stock dividends.

"Now what Mr. Mellon meant when he said the government cannot collect taxes due from income and surpluses on excess profits was that what the profiteers and millionaires do to escape the income and surpluses is to make false returns," said Governor Blaine. "Sometimes through ignorance but often through deceit and fraud or by legal devices and tricks of the trade, legally cheat the government."

Declaring that secrecy of income tax information was responsible for many frauds upon the government and that publicity would largely

WASHINGTON, December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—A statement of formal charges by Representative Keller, Republican, Minnesota, setting forth 14 specific grounds on which he seeks the impeachment of Attorney General Daugherty, has been submitted to the house of judiciary committee which meets next Monday to consider the charges.

Prepared To Prove Charges
Transmitted to the committee late yesterday, Mr. Keller's statement was accompanied by a letter to Chairman Volstead in which he declared the specifications set out and I am prepared to prove that the said Daugherty is guilty of serious misconduct in office, and of "high crimes and misdemeanors" in fourteen particulars.

"If any of the grounds set forth can be said to be more important than any other," Mr. Keller said in his statement, "it was that group relating to the refusal and neglect of the said Harry J. Daugherty to enforce the anti-trust laws of the United States of America."

Proposes Prominent Witnesses
"Alleging as another ground that the attorney general had appointed 'untrustworthy, corrupt and dangerous men' to high office, Mr. Keller named Chief Justice Taft as a witness to be called in support of this particular allegation, with George W. Wickham, former Attorney General Samuel Compton, president of the American Federation of Labor and Guy Oyster, Mr. Gompers' secretary as other desired witnesses in this connection."

Charges Fraud And Deceit
Another specification alleged against the attorney general by the Minnesota representative was that he had practiced "fraud and deceit" on Mr. Taft, while president to obtain the release from prison of Charles W. Morse, and that because of Morse's failure to pay to Daugherty's associates in the pardon proceedings an agreed fee, he had "promised" the office of Attorney General "for purposes of personal revenge" by securing indictment of Morse.

Briefly summarized, the "particulars" are as follows:

"1.—A wilful and deliberate attempt to paralyze and destroy the efforts and activities of the Federal Trade Commission in its attempts to suppress and punish violators of the anti-trust laws; by continued and deliberate refusal to prosecute such violators.

"2.—A wilful and deliberate refusal to prosecute the violations of the anti-trust laws that were called to his attention supported by testimony taken under oath by the New York State Joint Executive Committee on housing.

"3.—A wilful and deliberate refusal to prosecute the violations of the anti-trust laws that were called to his attention, supported by testimony and evidence before the United States senate committee on reconstruction and housing.

"4.—A wilful and deliberate failure and refusal to enforce the statutes of the United States passed by Congress for the protection of life and limb of citizens engaged in travel.

"5.—The dismissal from service in the Department of Justice, of faithful and efficient employees who had been engaged in investigating war fraud cases.

"6.—Allowing persons to remain in the employ of the department of Justice after it had been proved that such persons are guilty of having accepted fees to represent those charged by the Department of Justice with violations of the Federal statutes in cases upon which the said employees had been engaged.

FINED AND JAILED FOR ADDRESSING THE JURISTS

LOUISVILLE, KY., December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—A fine of $15 and a jail sentence of 15 hours imposed on Mrs. Walter P. Stamp for contempt of court as a result of her attempt to address the jury hearing the case of her former husband, charged with murder, was declared today by court attaches to present an occurrence without precedent in the history of the Louisville bar.

Mrs. Stamp, prevented from testifying because she was divorced from her husband after the date of the alleged murder, had listened to charges Friday that she had been intimate with the victim, W. Smith Russell. Stepping before the jury box she said:

"Gentlemen of the jury—She was silenced by the court stenographer. Under questioning she admitted addressing the jury, but said she was unaware that her action was irregular."

"They called me untrue, unfaithful and I had no way to defend myself," she explained.

She was placed in jail but later the fine and sentence was remitted.

Turks Demand Freedom Of Action

LAUSANNE, December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—The question of Turkish capitulation is on the Near East conference program for discussion today. Ismet Pasha and his associates are preparing to make a hard fight to sustain the claim that the Kemalists government has successfully terminated the special privileges accorded to foreigners under the Constantinople regime.

The progress of the capitulations discussion in the conference is being watched with great interest at Ankara, as the more extreme nationalists insist that the privileges have been calling to Turkey that they will never again submit to such a brand of inferiority to the western powers.

The nationalists spokesmen will attempt to prove to the conference that all capitulations have been waived by the Ankara government, that Turkey must no longer be hampered by foreign control of her customs and financial affairs and that the necessity no longer exists for foreign consular courts to administer justice to other nationals living in Turkey.

The Ottoman debt was also a topic to be called up today.

Hundreds Are Made Homeless

NEW BERN, N. D., December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—More than a thousand persons, most of them negroes, were homeless today as a result of a fire which swept through twenty blocks of the city yesterday and defied the efforts of fire-fighters from four other cities for eleven hours before it was brought under control last night.

Starting in the negro district in the western section while the entire fire force of the city was fighting another big blaze on the opposite side of town, the flames under a high wind, spread rapidly, and had consumed a number of dwellings before efforts to check it had begun. Despite the arrival in the next few hours of fire apparatus from Kingston, Goldsboro, Greenville and Washington, N. C., the fire continued to rage through the residential section, where more than 300 homes, most of them occupied by negroes, were destroyed, and then spread down the river front where it swept stores and a number of other structures. Only the open space of a cemetery prevented the flames from advancing into the central business district.

Empty warehouses, churches, the Y. M. C. A. and scores of residences were offered as shelter last night for the homeless, but hundreds were compelled to spend the night in the open. State troops were patrolling the devastated area today and the local chapter of the Red Cross was aiding in the care of the fire sufferers.

Heavy Police Guard For Clemenceau

ST. LOUIS, MO., December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—Georges Clemenceau, war time premier of France, who is touring the United States on a good will expedition, faced a busy program here today, the second day of his visit to St. Louis.

A public reception, an automobile parade and the delivery of the fourth of his addresses were the main events scheduled for the Tiger of France before his departure for Kansas City tonight.

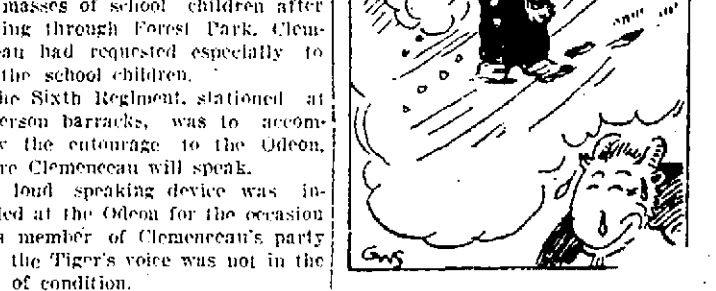

Elaborate police precautions have been taken to afford protection to the distinguished visitor approximately a thousand soldiers and policemen being detailed to guard the route of the parade. A score of police deputy sheriffs and detectives kept vigil at the home of Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the St. Louis Post Dispatch, where the famous Frenchman is staying.

After meeting the local reception committee at the Pulitzer home at 11 o'clock, this being the Tiger's first public appearance here, he was to start on the parade to the city, passing masses of school children after driving through Forest Park, Clemenceau had requested especially to see the school children.

The Sixth Regiment, stationed at Jefferson barracks, was to accompany the entourage to the Odéon, where Clemenceau will speak.

A loud speaking device was installed at the Odéon for the occasion as a member of Clemenceau's party said the Tiger's voice was not in the best of condition.

Not For Damages

Carroll Hartman, an administrator of the estate of her late husband, Carroll Hartman, deceased, is demanding $25,000 damages from the Norfolk and Western Railway company in an action instituted in Common Pleas court Saturday for the death of her husband, who died on Jan. 11, 1922, from injuries he sustained on Dec. 23, 1921, when an automobile he was driving was struck by a southbound train at a grade crossing in Lucasville.

In her petition filed through Attorney E. G. Miller, the plaintiff avers that Hartman used due care in approaching the crossing and was entirely without fault, alleging that the accident and fatal injury was caused solely by the negligence of the defendant in placing a box car, or camp car in such proximity to the crossing as to obstruct the view northward, and further by the alleged negligence of the engine crew in failing to sound a whistle or bell, or give any warning of the approach of the train. The plaintiff further claims that the defendant was the sole support of herself and little son, now four years old.

Continued For Further Evidence

The alimony suit of Ella Cutlip, 2286 Seventh street, against John D. Cutlip, Valley township farmer, was partially heard by Judge Thomas in Common Pleas court Saturday and then continued for further evidence.

They were married May 30, 1918, and separated a year later when the plaintiff left by reason of alleged ill-treatment and neglect. She told the court that Cutlip was stinky, declaring that he gave her but about $10 during all the time she lived with him, refused to procure a doctor when she jumped off a wagon and broke her ankle while assisting him in harvesting oats, and growled because she could not make a pound of coffee fast six weeks.

Cutlip denied her charges and insisted that the wife left without cause or justification and had refused to return to him, although his house had been, and was still open for her. He asks for a divorce on his cross-petition.

Attorney George W. Sheppard for the wife and B. F. Kimble for the defendant.

Olivia Stone Attempts To Kill Herself

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Olivia Stone, a trained nurse, of Cincinnati, who last March was acquitted of the murder of Ellis Guy Kinkaid, Brooklyn lawyer and former corporation counsel of Cincinnati, today attempted suicide at a New York hotel, by swallowing poison.

She was taken to Bellevue hospital where her condition was reported as critical, but somewhat improved today.

Found By Physician

Miss Stone was found by a hotel doctor living across the corridor, who was aroused by groans coming from the woman's apartment. He found her lying down, the doctor reported. On a nearby table was a box containing the remainder of the poison tablets. Beside it was a note addressed to a newspaper man. The doctor administered first aid and summoned the ambulance. She told him, said the police, she had taken the poison nearly 12 hours before.

According to the Hotel Manager

Miss Stone left there a fortnight ago after having been a guest for three weeks. She returned Thursday.

Was Without Funds

An examination of Miss Stone's effects revealed that she was apparently without funds, the police reported.

Miss Stone's trial on the murder charge attracted wide attention. Kinkaid was shot and killed near his home in Brooklyn August 5, 1921. The nurse was arrested at once and indicted on a charge of first degree murder to which she pleaded not guilty.

Alleged Betrayal

Her defense was that, betrayed by Kinkaid, she had traced him with the intention of getting him to fight the wrong. She testified that on the day of the shooting she was suffering from cramps for which she took a drink of liquor, and that she could recollect nothing of the shooting.

Recently a letter of credentials was issued from the school of nursing of the University of Cincinnati which entitled her to practice in New York state.

Held For Burying Wife Alive

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(By the Associated Press)—Abraham Becker, taxicab driver, was indicted today for the murder of his wife, Jennie, who, authorities believe, was buried alive in a quicklime filled grave from which her body was taken Wednesday.

The official theory that the woman was buried alive was formed after the report of Dr. Karl Kennard, assistant medical examiner of Bronx county had been submitted to the District Attorney. Dr. Kennard said that while she had been dealt a heavy blow on the head, it was of a nature that would have stunned her, and not ended her life.

Her hands and feet had been bound and a coat had been placed over her face. The body bore other evidences, he reported, that the woman had regained consciousness in the grave in a vacant lot and then fought against death.

Held In Big Bail

Itzhak Norkin, a welder, who held the District Attorney to the grave and asserted Becker had told him she was buried there, was held in $100,000 bond as a material witness.

Miss Anna Elias, who says that Becker is the father of her two year old child, also is being held as a material witness. She was arrested last night after having been turned into the streets by her parents.

Miss Elias was a witness before the grand jury. Handling her child to others in the witness room, she staggered before the jurors, became hysterical and fainted.

Starts Fund For Woman

One of the jurors offered to start a fund to care for her and the child, and offered and initial contribution of $100.

Miss Jennie Rosenweig, Miss Elias' sister, declared that her mother would take care of Miss Elias and the district attorney made arrangements with the children's society to take charge of the child.

THE THING ON THE HEARTH

Begin Here Today

Did some occult power of the Orient cause the mysterious and incredible tragedy which had removed from the world one of its greatest intelligences—the brain of RODMAN, who had startled scientists with his paper on the manufacture of precious stones by synthetic chemistry?

Rodman was dead. His attendant, that strange Oriental from the Shan monastery in Asia, told a story weird and incredible. Finally M. JONQUELLE, greatest of French detectives, was called to America and the Oriental rehearsed the story of what took place on the night when the man who could manufacture rubies and emeralds as cheaply as glass, met his death.

Go on With the Story

THE Oriental was going on with a slow, precise articulation as though he would thereby make a difficult matter clear.

"The night had fallen swiftly. It was incredibly silent. There was no sound in the Master's room, and no light except the flicker of the logs sizzling in the fireplace. The thin line of it appeared faintly along the sill of the door."

"The fireplace, Excellency, is at the end of the great room, directly opposite this door into the hall, before which I always sat when the Master was within. The fireplace is of black marble with an immense black-marble hearth. And the gift which I had brought the Master, stands on one side of the fire, on this marble hearth, as though it were a single andirons."

"The man turned back into the heart of his story.

"I knew by the vague sense of pressure that the decorations of the thing were again on the way. And I began to suffer in the spirit for the Master's safety. Interference, both by act and by the will, were denied me. But there is an anxiety of spirit, Excellency, that the uncertainty of an issue makes intolerable."

"The man paused.

"The pressure continued—and the silence. It was nearly midnight. I could not distinguish any act or motion of the Master, and in fear I crept over to the door and looked in through the crevice along the threshold."

"The Master sat by his table; he was straining forward, his hands gripping the arms of his chair. His eyes and every tense instinct of the man were concentrated on the fireplace. The red light of the embers was in the room. I could see him clearly, and the table beyond him, with the calculations; but the fireplace seemed strangely out of perspective—it extended above me."

"My gift to the Master, not more than four hand-breadths in length, including the base, stood now like an immense bronze on an extended marble slab beside a gigantic fireplace. This effect of extension put the top of the fireplace and the enlarged andirons, above its pedestal, out of my line of vision. Everything else in the chamber, holding its normal dimensions, was visible to me."

"I have said, Excellency, that my angle of vision along the crevice of the doorsill was sharply cut midway of this now enlarged fireplace. From the direction and lift of the Master's face, he was watching something above this line and directly over the pedestal of the andirons. I watched, also, flattening my face against the sill, for the thing to appear."

"And it did appear.

"A naked foot became slowly visible, as though someone were descending with extreme care from the elevation of the andirons to the great marble hearth, under this strange enlargement, now some distance below."

"The big Oriental paused, and looked down at me.

"I knew then, Excellency, that the Master was lost! The creative energies of the spirit suffer no division of worship; those of the body must be wholly denied. I had warned the Master. And in travail, Excellency, I turned over with my face to the floor."

"But there is always hope, hope over the certainties of experience, over the certainties of knowledge. Perhaps the Master, even now, sustained in the spirit, would put away the devotion. . . . No, Excellency. I was not misled. I knew the Master was beyond hope! But the will to hope moved me, and I turned back to the crevice at the doorsill."

He paused.

"There was now a delicate odor, everywhere, faintly, like the blossom of the little bitter apple here in your country. The red embers in the fireplace gave out a steady light; and in the glow of it, on the marble hearth, stood the one who had descended from the elevation of the andirons."

Again the man hesitated, as for an accurate method of expression.

"In the flesh, Excellency, there was color that would not appear in the image. The hair was yellow, and the eyes were blue; and against the black marble of the fireplace the body was conspicuously white."

"But in every other aspect of her, Excellency, the woman was in the hearth in the flesh as she is in the clutch of the savage male figure in the image."

"There is no dress or ornament, as you will recall, Excellency. Not even an ear-jewel or an anklet, as though the gravest of the image felt that the inherent beauty of his figure could take nothing from these ostentatious."

"The woman's heavy, yellow hair was wound around her head, as in the image. She shivered a little, faintly, like a naked child in an unaccustomed draught of air, although she stood on one side of the fire, on this marble hearth, as though it were a single andirons."

"The man turned back into the heart of his story."

"I knew by the vague sense of pressure that the decorations of the thing were again on the way. And I began to suffer in the spirit for the Master's safety. Interference, both by act and by the will, were denied me. But there is an anxiety of spirit, Excellency, that the uncertainty of an issue makes intolerable."

"The man paused.

"The pressure continued—and the silence. It was nearly midnight. I could not distinguish any act or motion of the Master, and in fear I crept over to the door and looked in through the crevice along the threshold."

"The Master sat by his table; he was straining forward, his hands gripping the arms of his chair. His eyes and every tense instinct of the man were concentrated on the fireplace. The red light of the embers was in the room. I could see him clearly, and the table beyond him, with the calculations; but the fireplace seemed strangely out of perspective—it extended above me."

"My gift to the Master, not more than four hand-breadths in length, including the base, stood now like an immense bronze on an extended marble slab beside a gigantic fireplace. This effect of extension put the top of the fireplace and the enlarged andirons, above its pedestal, out of my line of vision. Everything else in the chamber, holding its normal dimensions, was visible to me."

"I have said, Excellency, that my angle of vision along the crevice of the doorsill was sharply cut midway of this now enlarged fireplace. From the direction and lift of the Master's face, he was watching something above this line and directly over the pedestal of the andirons. I watched, also, flattening my face against the sill, for the thing to appear."

"And it did appear.

"A naked foot became slowly visible, as though someone were descending with extreme care from the elevation of the andirons to the great marble hearth, under this strange enlargement, now some distance below."

"The big Oriental paused, and looked down at me.

"I knew then, Excellency, that the Master was lost! The creative energies of the spirit suffer no division of worship; those of the body must be wholly denied. I had warned the Master. And in travail, Excellency, I turned over with my face to the floor."

"But there is always hope, hope over the certainties of experience, over the certainties of knowledge. Perhaps the Master, even now, sustained in the spirit, would put away the devotion. . . . No, Excellency. I was not misled. I knew the Master was beyond hope! But the will to hope moved me, and I turned back to the crevice at the doorsill."

He paused.

"There was now a delicate odor, everywhere, faintly, like the blossom of the little bitter apple here in your country. The red embers in the fireplace gave out a steady light; and in the glow of it, on the marble hearth, stood the one who had descended from the elevation of the andirons."

Interference, both by act and by the will, were denied me. But there is an anxiety of spirit, Excellency, that the uncertainty of an issue makes intolerable."

in an even, monotonous voice:

"I got up from the floor then, and purified myself with water. And after that I went into an upper chamber, opened the window to the east, and sat down to write my report to the brotherhood. For the thing which I had been sent to do was finished."

He put his hand somewhere into the loose folds of his Oriental garment and brought out a roll of thin, vellum-like onion-skin, painted in Chinese characters. It was of immense length, but on account of the thinness of the vellum, the roll wound on a tiny cylinder of wood was not above two inches in thickness.

"Excellency," he said, "I have carefully concealed this report through the misfortunes that have attended me. It is not certain that I shall be able to deliver it. Will you give it for me to the jeweler-merchant Vanderdek, in Amsterdam? He will send it to Mahadai in Bombay, and it will go north with the caravans."

I put the scroll into my pocket and went out, for a motor-car had come into the park, and I knew that Jonquelle had arrived.

I met Jonquelle and the superintendent in the long corridor; they had been looking in at my interview through the elevated grating.

"Jonquelle," I cried, "the judge was right to cut short the criminal trial and issue a lunacy warrant. This creature is the maddest lunatic in your pocket, to the Monastic Head. It's only a theory, you know."

He smiled, showing his white even teeth.

We went into the superintendent's room, and sat down by a smoldering fire of coals in the grate. I handed Jonquelle the roll of vellum. "It was in one of the Shan dialects. He read it aloud. With the addition of certain formal expressions, it contained precisely the Oriental's testimony before the court and no more."

"Ah!" he said in his curiously inflected voice.

And he held the scroll out to the heat of the fire. The vellum laked slowly, and as it laked, the black Chinese characters faded out and faint blue ones began to appear.

Jonquelle read the secret message in his emotionless drawl:

"The American is destroyed, and his accursed work is destroyed with him. Send the news to Bangkok and west to Burma. The treasures of India are saved."

I cried out in astonishment.

"An assassin! The creature was an assassin! He killed Rodman simply by crushing him in his arms!"

Jonquelle's drawl lengthened.

"It's Lal Gupta," he said, "the cleverest Oriental in the whole of Asia. The jewel-traders sent him to watch Rodman, and to kill him if he was ever able to get his formulae worked out. They must have paid him an incredible sum."

"And that is why the creature attached himself to Rodman?" I said.

"Surely," replied Jonquelle. "He brought that bronze—Rodman's carrying off the Saline woman—and staged the supernatural to work out his plan and to save his life. I knew the bronze as soon as I got my eye on it—old Franz Josef gave it as a present to Mahadai in Bombay for matching up some rubies."

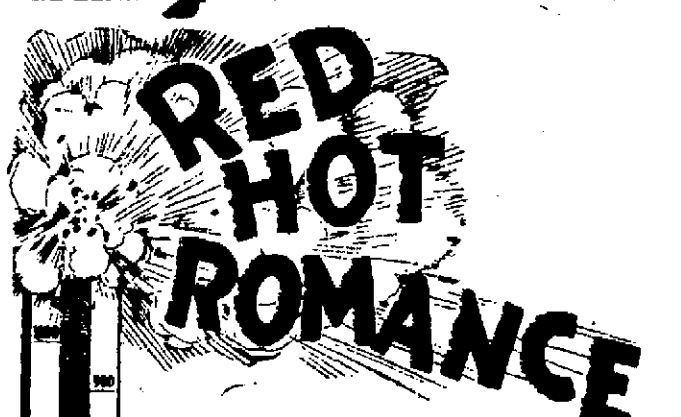

I swore bitterly.

"And we took him for a lunatic!"

"Ah, yes!" replied Jonquelle. "What was it you said as I came in? 'The human mind is capable of any absurdity!'"

Another M. Jonquelle story, "The Fortune Teller," will begin in our next issue.

Coroner's Jury Says Ragsdale Shooting Accidental

ASHLAND, Ky., Dec. 2.—Decision has been reached to hold a special court of inquiry into the death of Mrs. Corinne Ragsdale, who died of a gunshot wound in the head following a supper party at her home in Ashland Sunday night. It was stated here today by a local county official.

The inquiry is to be made, it was said, to attempt to clear up several angles of the shooting about which conflicting stories have been told.

It was also announced that officials would attempt to get into communication with Miss Nan Chambers and Andrew Northcott, both of Huntington, eye-witnesses of the shooting.

Neither has so far testified as to the events of the tragedy. Legal steps will be taken, if necessary, to bring them here to testify before the county judge, it was asserted.

In a statement, credited to her in the Ashland Independent, yesterday, Miss Chambers reversed in part an alleged statement made for the press on the night following the affair, saying that she had said Mrs. Ragsdale committed suicide.

"I merely said that I did not know Mrs. Ragsdale met her death," Miss Chambers said according to this statement. "The affair was so sudden and unexpected that I hardly knew what to think at the time. I am certain, however, that Mrs. Ragsdale did not fall down the stairs, but that she entered the room, there was no word spoken as the shot rang out and there had been no discussion of firearms."

R. F. Ragsdale, husband of the dead woman, is in Richmond attending her funeral services. He is suffering from wounds in his left leg inflicted when he attempted to jerk an automatic pistol from his pocket with alleged suicidal intent after a physician had told him his wife was dying. It was largely upon his testimony that a coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental shooting at the inquest.

Officials are to go to Huntington tomorrow to see the other two members of the jury.

All Aboard for Columbus

Eight Scioto county boys and girls will spend next week in Columbus as a result of their efficient work as members of the various clubs throughout the county. They are: Jacob Hammerstein, Jr., of the United Pig Club; Pine Creek; Virgil White of the Sedon Pig Club; Gertrude Frowine and Ruth Helt of the Sunshine Food Club; Averill Brown of the Willing Workers Food Club; Madison community; Juanita Boynton of the Haverhill Food Club; and Marjorie Jones of the Olney Food Club.

These boys and girls are county club winners in their respective projects. The program for club work at Ohio State University provides a wide variety of instruction and entertainment for 500 farm youngsters who are to be given this week as a prize. Monday will largely be given over to establishing the county winners at down town hotels where rooms have been reserved for them, and to organizing groups for the week.

Monday will open a program of special instruction along lines which the children have followed in their work. The Soils Department, for example, plans a special display of chemical fireworks indoors to accompany a talk on "The Wonders of the Soil." Girls in food club work will "weigh in," drink a lot of milk all week and "weigh out" at the end. Wednesday morning will be taken up with tours of the campus and of Columbus. In the afternoon, at special exercises, state champions in 10 or more club projects will be announced and medals presented. Friday's feature will be an impromptu Stunt Night in which the youngsters will put on plays about their work.

W. O. Thompson, president of the University; Alfred Vivian, dean of agriculture; William M. Anderson, professor of English; S. A. Touch, secretary of the State Bankers' Association; Murray D. Lincoln of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation; and others will talk to the young farmers during the week. Gymnasium, play and recreation periods will be held daily.

Short Course in Agriculture
The following is an extract from a circular just sent out from the College of Agriculture of the Ohio State University announcing the short winter course of eight weeks, which will consist of two four-week periods, each period complete in itself. One week of the first term will be Farming Week.

"What can grow this winter? You can grow this winter! Man is not like the hedgehog that has to curl up in a small, stuffy place as soon as the winds blow cold, and snow piles up, and stars sharpen in the sky—that has to curl up at this time the most stimulating time of the year and die from the cold. You can do this. If you want to, but will you? You can grow this winter."

"While your fields lie inert waiting for spring to bring them back to life you can be at your State University learning new things, meeting new people, storing up a wealth of facts and wisdom against the time when things get active on the farm."

"Agriculture is steadily becoming a more and more complex occupation. The farming of tomorrow will challenge the best wisdom and courage that man can supply, but to the brave and brainy it will yield ample reward."

"With little cost except for the living expenses of eight weeks at Columbus, your College of Agriculture offers you short courses on 16 phases of agriculture, embracing the best knowledge of 50 years of experimentation and study."

"And if you cannot get away for eight weeks, the College has split the courses into two four-week periods, each period complete in itself. First term January 2nd to 24th. Farmers' Week January 2nd to February 2nd; second term February 5th to March 2nd."

If interested, application blanks may be secured at the Farm Bureau office.

"My stomach was so out of order for two years that it wouldn't let me have any peace. I would have spells of heartburn and pains which were so severe as to lay me up in bed for hours. Actually, I suffered until my face would be wet with perspiration. I would almost starve myself in my efforts to avoid this awful misery, but I suffered just the same."

"A friend of the family recommended Tandae and it has helped me so much that I feel it my turn to praise it. MARRIAGE A LA MODE

Among the Wallahs, the gypsies of Asia Minor, when a betrothal has been announced the village girls troop to the forest to cut firewood for the young couple.

They choose at the same time a branch having at its extremity five twigs. On one they fashion an apple; on the other four, tufts of red wool.

The apple is an emblem of love, the tufts of wool are symbolic of household thrift and industry.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE next person that the Green Wizard helped was one of the fairies.

Indeed, it was none other than Mr. Scribble Scratch, the thin schoolmaster of Meadow Grove School.

One day he met Nancy and Nick walking in Whispering Forest. He was on his way home to his little house by the bitter-sweet path and he looked tired and discouraged.

When he saw the Twins, his face brightened.

"How do you do, my dears?" he said pleasantly. "I'm glad to see you."

"We're pretty well, thank you," answered they. "And we're glad to see you, too. We hope you are well."

The schoolmaster sighed. "Just pretty," he said. "I wish I had you back to help me."

"We're helping the Green Wizard," explained Nancy. "But perhaps we can come when—"

"The very thing," said Mr. Scribble Scratch. "You can help me where you are. Will you ask the Wizard if he has such a thing as a magical wisdom cap? If I just had a wisdom cap, I'd be all right."

"Why, I thought you knew everything," cried Nancy astonished. "La, me!" exclaimed Scribble Scratch. "I don't need a magical wisdom cap, my dear. It's my simple pupils. If I had a wisdom cap, I'd give you each a turn wearing it. And then think how smart they'd be."

"What, that's a fine idea," said Nick admiringly. "We'll ask Mr. Green Wizard at once."

The Wizard did produce a magical wisdom cap and the Twins took it to Scribble Scratch who fairly cried for joy.

A week later the Twins, passing, saw a sign which said, "School Closed." Then, said Mr. Scribble Scratch at his desk looking as forlorn as a rainy day.

"What can be wrong?" asked Nancy kindly.

"They all got so smart they knew everything," said the schoolmaster ruefully, "and now they won't come and I'm out of a job."

"Oh, don't worry," Nick assured him. "Give us the wisdom cap and we'll bring you a dancer cap instead."

A movement which was started several weeks ago and which may result in giving Portsmouth an elegant new hotel was given further impetus yesterday when several of those interested in the proposed deal, held a conference in this city.

It is said those back of the movement have gone so far as to make a bid of $75,000 for a site for the proposed building.

Those at the conference besides Attorney Mark A. Crawford and other local persons were H. A. Elks, Chillicothe capitalist, and Allen Taylor of Cincinnati, prominent in the hotel business. They left the city last night but are expected to return in a few days to renew negotiations.

Progressives Must Work Slowly And Carefully, LaFollette Tells Colleagues

WASHINGTON, December 2.—(By the United Press)—The progressive movement must work slowly and carefully, if it is to succeed, Senator LaFollette warned those in attendance today in opening the conference of Progressive men and women from all parts of the country. Each step must be taken on thorough investigation and research so that the Progressive movement shall suffer no setbacks. The steady advance of the Progressive movement depends on sound economic thinking, LaFollette said. Therefore the Progressives in congress propose that each step shall be well grounded instead of going out to settle great dominant issues at one stroke.

Following LaFollette's opening address the conference adopted a resolution by Basil Munly, declaring the conference would not engage in partisan political activities, but would limit its work to support of a legislative program adopted yesterday by the congressional Progressives who organized the Progressive bloc. This was in line with disavowal of the congressional bloc of any intention to form a third party.

WASHINGTON, December 2.—(By the Associated Press)—The purposes of the new "Progressive" movement inaugurated yesterday by organization of the Progressive bloc in congress were declared formally to be legislative and not political in resolutions adopted at a general public conference.

Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, presided over the general public gathering today which was attended by more than 100 members of congress, Governors and other leaders. Representative Woodruff, Republican, Michigan, was elected secretary of the conference. The first resolution adopted by the convention declared that the movement was non-partisan and would devote itself to "consideration of devising methods and means for co-operation and support" of the general legislative program adopted yesterday by the new Progressive congressional bloc.

At the suggestion of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor the resolutions had been amended to declare the movement "non-partisan" instead of "non-political."

Senator LaFollette declared that "there seems to be a mandate growing out of the election for a movement to advance the interests of the people."

He said organization yesterday of the new bloc was "the greatest and most encouraging thing" in his experience. "It is proposed," said Senator LaFollette, "that each legislative step shall be well founded and not at one stroke. Committee resolutions were appointed headed by Frederick Howe, former immigration commissioner at New York. Other members designated included President Gompers, of the federation of labor, who retired in favor of Andrew Furuseth, professor of the International Seamen's Union.

A special committee to draft separate resolutions declaring for a national movement for direct primaries was headed by former Representative Keating, of Colorado.

Speeches urging aid for farmers were made by Senators Ellet Wheeler, of Montana, and Frazier of North Dakota. They said the farmers were not receiving the cost of production and were suffering from high freight rates and car shortage. An investigation of the car situation was advocated by Mr. Wheeler.

"Something must be done to help the farmers," said Mr. Frazier, "or the nation will go broke as the farmers have gone broke."

In introducing Governor Blaine, of Wisconsin, Senator LaFollette said that a number of other Progressive governors were prevented from attending by the meeting of their legislatures, but that a conference of Progressive governors in January was planned to formulate a program of Progressive action.

A special committee to draft separate resolutions declaring for a national movement for direct primaries was headed by former Representative Keating, of Colorado.

Speeches urging aid for farmers were made by Senators Ellet Wheeler, of Montana, and Frazier of North Dakota. They said the farmers were not receiving the cost of production and were suffering from high freight rates and car shortage. An investigation of the car situation was advocated by Mr. Wheeler.

"Something must be done to help the farmers," said Mr. Frazier, "or the nation will go broke as the farmers have gone broke."

In introducing Governor Blaine, of Wisconsin, Senator LaFollette said that a number of other Progressive governors were prevented from attending by the meeting of their legislatures, but that a conference of Progressive governors in January was planned to formulate a program of Progressive action.

He said organization yesterday of the new bloc was "the greatest and most encouraging thing" in his experience. "It is proposed," said Senator LaFollette, "that each legislative step shall be well founded and not at one stroke. Committee resolutions were appointed headed by Frederick Howe, former immigration commissioner at New York. Other members designated included President Gompers, of the federation of labor, who retired in favor of Andrew Furuseth, professor of the International Seamen's Union.

NEGROES TRY TO BLOW SAFE; ONE ARRESTED

Caught in the act of attempting to crack the safe in the office of the Schmidt-Watkins Company, plumbers, 924 Gallia street, at an early hour Saturday morning, two negroes tried to escape when one of the negroes succeeded in getting away while the other was apprehended by the officers and landed behind the bars at the city prison.

It was shortly before 2 o'clock when a man, whose name was not learned, in passing along Gallia street in an auto discovered the negroes in the place working industriously to open the safe and he promptly notified police headquarters. Capt. Lee Startzman responding to the call hurried to the place and stationing Officer Downs in front the Captain smashed the glass in a front door and entered. He searched the place but the robbers had fled but later a negro giving the name of James Hicks, 26 years old, was caught on the roof by one of a group of young men who assisted the officers.

An investigation disclosed that the burglars had entered the shop by forcing a rear window and that they had succeeded in knocking the combination off the safe before being frightened away.

The prisoner on being taken to police headquarters refused to divulge the name of his companion and he was locked up at the city jail to meet a charge of burglary.

Burns Fatal To Child

Burns suffered by Delbert Underwood, young son of Mr. and Mrs. William Underwood, 913 Oak street caused the death of the child at Hampstead hospital this morning at 6:50 o'clock. The child was badly burned about the back, arms and right hip, and although the burns were not deep they were extensive and caused a great deal of suffering. The frail body was not strong enough to stand the terrible pains and early this morning the child passed away.

Sunday afternoon, Delbert, who would have been three years old December 19, was playing with his brother, Jesse four years old. Delbert secured a piece of paper and lit it at an open gas stove. When he pulled the paper out the burning paper ignited his clothing and he was soon a human torch. The father tore the burning clothing from the child but not before it had been badly burned. Dr. T. C. Crawford was called and he had the child removed to Hampstead hospital where every effort was made to make the victim comfortable. The child's condition took a change for the worse late Friday.

The surviving relatives are the parents, William and Audrey Underwood, two brothers, Jesse four years old and Elmer eight months old and a sister, Bazzie, five years old.

The family moved to Portsmouth from near Rome Adams county about four years ago. The father is an N. & W. laborer.

Why Taft Is Wanted

The reasons why Mr. Taft desired to have Chief Justice Taft and Mr. Wickersham testify were set forth in his bill of particulars. He cited the case of Wm. N. Jones, convicted in 1907 for alleged land frauds against the government in Oregon and subsequently pardoned by President Taft. He alleged that William J. Burns, now chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice and then employed by the government, "got possession in advance" of the prospective jurors who were to be called in the trial of Jones, and placed opposite their names a notation as to their so-called fitness for a prosecuting standpoint.

Wickersham Is Quoted

Through the influence of a secret service agent associated as a defaulter, he said, "Jones was induced to accept as jurors men to whom otherwise he would have objected." Attorney General Wickersham after investigating the circumstances reported to Mr. Taft, as set forth in the Keller bill, that he could not "countenance the methods employed in the prosecution of these cases by requiring an enforcement of the sentence imposed in the Jones case."

Pardon Is Granted

On receipt of the report by Mr. Wickersham, President Taft promptly pardoned Jones, the bill set forth. At the time of Burns' appointment by Mr. Daugherty, Mr. Keller asserted that Mr. Gompers went to him and protested, called attention to the record in the Jones case, and that Mr. Daugherty, in his presence, sent for the files which were "produced and which contained the report of Attorney General Wickersham and the direction of President Taft for the issuance of a pardon."

"In this full knowledge of the facts," Mr. Keller stated that Mr. Daugherty went ahead and made the Burns appointment.

Mr. Keller said it would require at least a month additional time for him to prepare full particulars in his case and that most of this time would be taken up in examining documents at the department of justice to which he demanded he be given access.

Committee To Meet; May Endorse Postmaster Candidate

A call has been issued for a meeting of the Republican Executive Committee at one-thirty Monday afternoon for the purpose of endorsing a candidate for postmaster of Portsmouth.

The call follows closely the announcement made yesterday by the National Civil Service Commission, in a report which shows that W. H. Harsha, Frank W. Moulton and Gilbert Dodds to be eligible for the appointment in the order named, as the result of a recent examination participated in by several others.

FIREMEN FIGHT FOREST FIRES

The company from the Gallia street fire station successfully combated forest fires which raged late Friday in the woods in the vicinity of the Narrows at Sciotoville, and which for a time threatened the nearby homes and other dwellings there.

Chief Leedom and his men backfired and stopped the progress of the flames in this manner after several hours of hard work.

In a statement issued by Chief Leedom Saturday he warned hunters to be careful not to start fires in the woods at this time as the leaves are very dry and fire spreads rapidly.

Important Meeting Of Farmers

All farmers of the county are urged to attend a meeting that will be held in the Portsmouth High School Auditorium Thursday afternoon, December 7, at one o'clock, at which time the all important matter of taxation will be discussed. The main address of the afternoon will be given by Representative Elect Adam Frick, who is well prepared to speak on such a question. The general public is invited and large realty holders who are the big tax payers, are especially invited to attend. At this meeting there will be a discussion as to the best manner in which to obtain legislation that will lift the taxation from the farms and large realty owners.

Dodds Forces Will Fight For Postmastership

Friends of Gilbert Dodds, former county treasurer, do not concede that W. H. Harsha has a lead pipe chuck on the post office and will go into the committee meeting Monday prepared to fight to a finish. Dodds made a determined effort last summer to capture the county central committee and is said to have a majority of that body. His friends claim that Dodds will have nine sure of the 19 members of the Republican executive committee.

The chief argument being used against Harsha is that he has not been an active worker in the party, and did not take much interest in party affairs until he wanted the post office. "He should at least serve an apprenticeship before he grabs the best plum in the gift of the party locally," is the way one Dodds' supporter put it Saturday.

What strength Frank W. Moulton has in the committee is not clear. There is talk that Moulton may throw his votes to Dodds, should it develop that he has no chance of winning. In the meantime Harsha is sitting tight and seems confident of securing the necessary majority.

Aside from the candidates not much interest is being manifested in the scrap. There was a time when the whole town would be topsy-turvy over the naming of a postmaster, but times have changed.

STROLLERS AND SMOKE HOUSE ELEVENS DECIDE COUNTY FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP SUNDAY

Big Game Will Be Played In Millbrook; Starts At 2

One of the hardest fought Sunday football games of the season will be staged Sunday afternoon on the Millbrook gridiron when the big Smoke House eleven meets the New Boston Smoke Shop Strollers. This battle for the county championship will be called at 2 o'clock sharp so that it may be finished before darkness.

Manager J. J. Marsh of the Smoke Shop Strollers has hopes of showing the Smoke House team that the Strollers have a real football aggression. Captain Sam Ackroyd of the Smoke House team is just as confident that his team will win easily for the players have been practicing hard and will go into the game to see how big a score they can run up on the Strollers. The New Boston eleven has played good football this season and will no doubt give the Smoke House team a tough battle. Pearce, Barriss and the Oakes brothers, former Smoke House players, are in the Strollers' lineup along with Mays and King, start on the New Boston high school eleven last season.

The Smoke House team will take the field with the following lineup: Prior, Engelbrecht, R. G. Gardner, L. G. Molter, R. T. Appel, L. T. Ayer, R. E. Phillips, L. E. Taylor, G. J. Chabot, R. H. De Voss, L. H. Adams, F. R.

The Smoke Shop Strollers will use Stanner at center, C. Oakes and Barnes at guard, A. Oakes and Brister at tackle, Pearce and Barriss on the ends, Smith, Quarterback, Mays, right half, Cooke, left half, and McCormick, fullback.

ACE CLUB TO PRACTICE TONIGHT

The local Ace Club basketball team will hold a stiff scrimmage session in the P. H. S. gym this evening and all members of the team are urged to report at seven o'clock. The Ace Club will play its first game in this city next Saturday evening, the Holy Redeemer High quintet being the opposition.

Athens Swamped

ATHENS, O., Dec. 2.—The Middletown High School team Thursday ended the season here by defeating Athens High, 50 to 0. The visitors smashed their way through the lighter Athens outfit almost at will, blocking punts and winning easily on straight football. It was the worst defeat Athens has had for years. Last year these same teams played to a scoreless tie at Middletown.

SCOUTMASTERS GET FIRST TEST

A large number of local men interested in boys work were present at the third number of the Scoutmasters Training Course held last evening at seven o'clock in room No. 104 of the local high school building. The session was very brief, but interesting, and a large amount of enthusiasm was displayed. The time of the lecture was limited because of the Frances Joyner entertainment which began at eight o'clock in the P. H. S. auditorium.

There was a general discussion of tenderfoot requirements after which there was a written test covering the first thirty-six pages of the Handbook for Boys. The following questions were given to those present:

1. State in your own words the aim of the Scout movement.
2. What is the religious policy of the movement.
3. What is the limit in number of Scouts in a troop.
4. How many scouts in a patrol.
5. Name the officers of a Scout troop.
6. Where can a troop be organized.
7. What are the duties of a patrol leader.
8. Give the Scout oath and two of the laws. What is the salute.
9. What is the significance of the Scout lodge.
10. What is the governing body of the national movement. Who is the highest officer.
11. Give brief history of American flag.
12. Name the knots required in tenderfoot examination.

Tenative Games For 1923

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Taking a leaf from 1922 experience where stadium accommodations upwards of 75,000 spectators were unable to meet half the popular demand for tickets, football fans eager to view 1923 classics plan to do their ticket shopping early.

For the benefit of those followers of the pigskin and also as a helpful hint to graduate managers who already are busy with 1923 scheduling, the following list of probable games for next season's outstanding gridiron skirmishes will serve as a guide:

October 27—Army vs. Yale.
November 10—Harvard vs. Princeton.
November 17—Harvard vs. Brown.
November 24—Yale vs. Harvard; Lafayette vs. Lehigh; Brown vs. Dartmouth.
November 29 (Thanksgiving Day)—Cornell vs. Pennsylvania; Penn State vs. Pittsburgh; W. and J. vs. West Virginia.
December 1—Army vs. Navy.

Neale Willing To Return To W. And J.

Duke Ridgley in the Huntington Herald Dispatch says: "If Washington and Jefferson wants me back bad enough, I will return to little Washington in 1923."

This is the official statement that the noted football coach and National League baseball player gave out to the writer in the dressing room of the Washington and Jefferson club immediately following today's dramatic struggle with West Virginia. This announcement will no doubt cause more or less comment, as it was generally understood among the football fraternity that Neale was on the "outs" with the athletic board at Washington and Jefferson and had handed in his resignation.

When asked about the report that he had applied for the coaching post at Columbia University in New York City, "Greasy" stated that it was true that he had exchanged telegrams with the New York school but that he had not made a bid for the job.

White Tail Deer Arrive At Refuge

The first consignment of White Tailed deer from the Wallace Evans Game Farm, Saint Charles, Ill., to be used in stocking The Theodore Roosevelt Game Preserve arrived last night by express and they were immediately taken by truck to the refuge. There were six beautiful mature does in the first shipment, all in perfect condition. The animals were taken to the corral which has been erected on the refuge and they will be liberated by Game Protector Frank Voorhees about daylight this morning. The local refuge will receive in all one hundred deer from Wallace Evans.

who is known as the largest breeder of the White Tailed species in the world. His game farm at Saint Charles is the largest in the world, and Mr. Evans is recognized as the foremost authority on wild animals and their care in the United States. Arrangements are nearing completion for the dedication of the big Refuge next Tuesday.

November Very Dry

According to the regular monthly report of F. B. Winter, local River Observer, the highest stage of the Ohio for the month just past was 13.6. Low stage for November was 10.2 and the rainfall was only .88 inches, the lightest in years. That November was an unusually dry month is evidenced by comparison of Mr. Winter's official government report for the same period of time last year. In November, 1921, the rain fell was 7.36 inches. In November last year water was over the top-path a stage of 45.8 being recorded on Thanksgiving Day, while on last Thursday the stage was but thirteen feet.

NEW LEADERS NEEDED

THE world is demanding new leadership. There is more than a passing coincidence in the fact that the downfall of Lloyd George, in England, the overthrow of the Facta government in Italy, the ousting of Wirth in Germany, and the recent upset shown by the election in the United States, all should have occurred within the short space of a month. These political upheavals may be unrelated in effect, but in cause they are one—dissatisfaction over present conditions.

The old order is changing, whether for better or worse time alone will tell, dissatisfied with conditions that now obtain, the people are milling around, much after the order of cattle in a stock yard, intent on getting somewhere, but with no particular objective in view. It is such as this that challenge leadership; it is such situations that are born those who rise to the heights of an Alexander, a Caesar, a Washington, or a Lincoln.

But these were men who looked ahead, not behind. They built anew for tomorrow in preference to salvaging the wreckage of yesterday. It has been the failure of erstwhile leaders to accept the spirit of progressivism, which has become the dominant trend of this age, that has led to their downfall and involved the world in such confusion. The world at heart is not radical. But if so-called leaders cannot vision anything in the future save that reflected by the conservatism of the past, there is grave danger that they will drive the people into political and economic experiments which otherwise would never be accepted.

What the world most needs now is leaders—strong men with strong convictions and unquestionable courage—who will exemplify the spirit of today rather than reflect the beliefs of yesterday.

SCIENCE MARCHES ONWARD

AT Columbia University, New York, the staff of scientists are experimenting with an X-ray machine which is capable of making transparent a man's hand a block away, through a thick brick wall intervene.

The machine fills two rooms, the walls of which are insulated with lead. No human being thus far has come under its rays, but extensive experiments have been made with animals. The machine is the first of its kind to register and control the intensity of its rays. It is expected that treatments of human patients, when full control of the mechanism is perfected, will consume virtually the same amount of time, varying only in the degree of intensity. At present the time element enters in important measure into X-ray treatments.

Such inventions as this giant machine more than ever emphasize the fact that men are increasingly learning to put into halter and harness the great forces of the universe. The use of the telescope, with which to view distant objects, was unknown 400 years ago. This great X-ray apparatus has no difficulty in revealing the most intricate details of objects nearer at hand, even though other opaque matter intervene.

Who shall say that it will not be given to man to explore some day into the recesses on the other side of the moon?

SIGNS

THE nature of the coming winter will be determined according to an old superstition, by the conditions noted on the first three days of December. A day for a month—so the old belief goes. This sign should be about as reliable as any of forecasting the weather.

All those homely and rustic signs viewed with a great deal of credence as sure prognosticators, point this year to an open winter. There is but little black on the coat of the caterpillar. Corn husks are the lightest that have been observed for several years. Muskrat are making their winter quarters in shallow water near the banks of streams. If a long siege of cold weather were coming they would have built in midstream.

The squirrels are burying their crop of hickory nuts less deeply than usual. A number of cases of late blossoming apple trees have been reported, and several keen observers have noticed such phenomena as the liveliness of spiders and the presence of angleworms above ground at this late day.

But don't pin faith too readily to these signs. The United States weather bureau is about the most reliable prophet. And it is not given to foretelling the weather beyond a space of 48 hours.

Clothes may not make the man but neither does lack of them.

Indigestion probably keeps more persons awake than conscience.

The easiest way to save money is to cut down the cost of experience.

Many persons seem to get along fairly well until they are caught at it.

One redeeming feature about infant prodigies is that they have plenty of time to grow out of it.

Some election returns seem to indicate that a country can be led to water, but it cannot be made to drink.

One bit of post-election humor is seen in the defeated candidate congratulating his successful rival.

Plans To Organize Boy Scout Troop

J. F. Dudley, secretary of the Railway Y. M. C. A., is making preparations for the organization of a troop of Boy Scouts under the auspices of the Association. Mr. Dudley will use a room in the Y building for troop meetings, a room formerly used for a barber shop. There are several boys of the Scout age in the vicinity of the terminals and it is very important according to Scout Executive Henderson that they should be properly taken care of and he will cooperate with Mr. Dudley in organizing the troop which will be formed in the near future.

It will be the only troop in that part of the city and it is expected that the venture will be a most successful one. A scout master will be named very soon. There are two troops at Seabrook and New Boston and both are live up-to-the-minute organizations, check full of Scout enthusiasm and spirit holding successful meetings and having a most successful history.

It will be remembered that the Y is in the place where M. F. H. Kinsey, formerly of this city, now of Charleston, W. Va., organized the first Scout troop in the city in the year 1911. Mr. Kinsey will be in Portsmouth on January 4 to speak at the Scoutmaster Course meeting.

Denies Guilt; May Seek A New Trial

Charles Mershon, well known farmer of Pond Creek, who was arrested by the county officers last Saturday evening, vigorously denies the charge of liquor possession placed against the statement made by the men who arrested him to the effect that "his pockets were bulging" with several bottles of "white lightning" when apprehended. He is absolutely untrue. He says that at the time he happened to be in a public place on Market street with a number of men who did have some of the "hooch" and who offered him a drink just as the county officers entered. When he appeared before Squire Ricker, Mershon was fined two hundred dollars for violation of the liquor laws. Mershon will probably ask for a rehearing of the case.

Irvin Dismissed

Lee Irvin, 1506 Waller street, charged with pointing firearms at Willie Johnson, was dismissed by Judge McCall following a hearing in Municipal court Friday for lack of evidence to support the complaint. Johnson claimed that he was robbed and then chased away from Irvin's home at the point of a gun while the accused declared that because of misconduct on Johnson's part he ejected the latter from his home but denied having a pistol or of taking the money.

New York=Day=By=Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The comic tragic, Baileff, has held his own against all comers in "Chauve-Souris." Two revie Russe imitations have died diamally in the past month. Every musical show has its burlesque of Baileff, who came from a dinky Moscow cellar cabaret to speak pidgin-English.

The appeal of Baileff is his tragedy. A clown whose mind is touched by melancholy and wonder. In his presence the old tales of Russia come to life, the haunting world from which they arise grips you. You laugh with a lump in your throat.

It is one of the wonders of the theatrical world—this presenting of crude reality on the stage. Morris Gest discovered it. He is a Russian—a former newsboy—who has given New York brilliant and aesthetically heartening performances and lost fortune after fortune.

But has success swept to his head? We wonder. At the recent presentation of the second edition of "Chauve Souris" before an audience that surpassed the Follies in dazzling splendor, Gest was in the lobby at the intermission.

George Jean Nathan, who scatters his adjectives and mobilizes his adverbs in the Stuart Set, rushed toward Mr. Gest with outstretched hand. "It is fine, Morry," he said. "Indeed magnificent." Mr. Gest coldly ignored the outstretched palm.

He drew himself up, haughtily. "Get out of my theatre, Nathan! I do not want you around here," he said. "You write for 8,000 people, all of them servant girls. You are less than nothing in my life."

Nathan departed in confusion. Gest puffed furiously at his long cigar. The lobby loungers gaped at a history making event. It was the first time a producer had publicly snubbed the most potent of the metropolitan dramatic critics—an erudite fellow who makes and unmakes plays.

Add to the worst puns of the week: "Carpenter doesn't look so well since he took Siki."

The spacious office of Charles M. Schwab in lower Broadway is lined with autographed photographs of notables from all far-flung corners. A picture of Cecil Rhodes is above that of Charlie Chaplin. And Mary and Dong are beside that of Kitchener. There are four ex-presidents and two reigning kings. Mr. Schwab has few idle moments in his office, but when he does he deliques in wandering about gazing at the likenesses of his many friends.

The Hills of Maine

(By W. D. Stephens)

When the sky can't hide its gladness That the day has come again, Blinging off the dewy cobwebs night has scattered on the plain, Singing with the larks and thrushes, coaxing rainbows out of rain, Fragrant with the vines and flowers, Summer wears a crown and train

Oh, the hills, the hills of Maine!

When the moon is hot with kisses for each shining, flaunting stream And the wild bees' busy humming hurls the flowers into dream: When the morning's blue and purple but a hazy glamour seem, Veiling with a gray-blue curtain every mountain lake's bright gleam; Oh, the hills, the hills of Maine!

When the evening stillness quivers over valley, field and wood, And the shadows drive the bird folk to the coverts where they brood, And from out the sky's pale vastness the first star takes off its hood, While the frogs set up their chant that would be music if it could: Oh, the hills, the hills of Maine!

Cause for Absence

The president of the Woman's Advancement society was agitated. So was the secretary. "Mrs. Nimbletong, who was to deliver the address at today's meeting, cannot be present," said the former.

"Why not?"

"Her husband has been seriously ill three or four days."

"But a woman of her strength of principle won't neglect her work in the great cause to attend to the paltry needs of an individual—and a male individual at that!"

"Certainly not, but he writes her speeches."—Houston Post.

What Cohen Had

Cohen was a local salesman for a New York woolen concern. The depression in business being serious he was willing to go out of the way for an order. One day he invited a prospective buyer out to dine.

The guest picked up the menu, studied it, and ordered from soup to nuts. The waiter turned to Cohen. "What will you have, sir?"

Cohen despondently replied: "Gimme tea and toast."

From across the table came the mildly surprised query of his friend: "What's the matter, Cohen, on a diet?"

"No. Only on commission."

One Better

The oldest good story is the one about the boy who left the farm and got a job in the city. He wrote a letter to his brother, who elected to stick to the farm, telling him of the joys of city life, in which he said:

"Thursday we autoed out to the country club, where we golfed until dark. Then we motored to the beach and Friday there."

The brother on the farm wrote back:

"Yesterday we haggled to town and baseball all afternoon. Then we went to Med's place and pokered till morning. Today we nulled out to the cornfield and geehawed until sundown. Then we suppered and then we pepped for a while. After that we staired up to our moon and bedstead until the clock fired."

A Big Load

As Dad escorted little John through the Zoo, they came upon a rabbit with two little bunnies grazing near.

"Look," said Dad, "what the stork brought the mother rabbit."

Later they passed before the elephant enclosure. Beside the mother elephant stood her latest offspring.

"Oh!" said Johnnie, "did the stork bring this one too?"

"Er—ah—no!" said Dad, haltingly. "It must have been a crane."
